

MISSION: Warrior Expeditions is a veteran nonprofit outdoor therapy program that helps veterans transition from their wartime experiences through long-distance outdoor expeditions.

BACKGROUND: Historically, military units would experience a lengthy journey home after fighting a campaign abroad. During this journey home, warriors would process and come to terms with their wartime experiences. In today's age of modern transportation, military personnel can find themselves home within a few days of serving in a combat zone.

Since 2001, over 3 million veterans have returned home from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, but many of them have never transitioned from their experiences. The Department of Veteran Affairs estimates that over 15% of Iraq and Afghanistan veterans suffer from Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder.

In 2012, after returning home from three combat deployments to Iraq and Afghanistan, Marine Corps veteran Sean Gobin hiked all 2,185 miles of the Appalachian Trail. Recognizing the therapeutic effects of long-distance hiking, Sean founded Warrior Expeditions.

NATIONAL PROGRAMS: In 2013, Warrior Expeditions launched the first Warrior Hike program and supported veterans that thru-hiked the Appalachian Trail. In 2014, after receiving a tremendous amount of interest from veterans, Warrior Expeditions added the Continental Divide Trail and Pacific Crest Trail to the Warrior Hike program.

STATE PROGRAMS: From 2015 to 2016, Warrior Expeditions added five trails to the Warrior Hike program that traverse single states. These trails are shorter in duration, easier to hike, and allow veterans to connect with their local communities. These Warrior Hike programs include the Arizona Trail, Buckeye Trail, Florida Trail, Ice Age Trail and Mountains to Sea Trail.

ADAPTIVE PROGRAMS: To accommodate veterans with injuries that may prevent them from hiking long distances, Warrior Expeditions developed two adaptive programs. Warrior Bike is a cross country bicycling program that traverses the Great American Rail Trail and Warrior Paddle is a paddling program that traverses the entire length of the Mississippi River.

QUALITATIVE IMPACTS: Since 2013, Warrior Expeditions veterans report significant improvements in their physical, mental, and social well-being during and after their journeys.

CONTEMPLATION: During their 3-6 month outdoor expedition, veterans have the opportunity to decompress from their military service and come to terms with their wartime experiences.

CAMARADERIE: Veterans participating in Warrior Expeditions programs experience their journey with the camaraderie of other veterans who understand the challenges of transitioning from military service to civilian life.

COMMUNITY: Interaction with community supporters during their journey facilitates a veteran's reintegration into society, restores their faith in humanity, and builds a network of life-long friendships and relationships.

QUANTITATIVE IMPACTS: Since 2013, psychologists Dr. Shauna Joye (Air Force veteran) and Dr. Zachary Dietrich (Marine Corps veteran) have partnered with Warrior Expeditions to research and publish the effects of long-term wilderness experiences on combat veterans.

METHODS: Each year, Warrior Expeditions veterans volunteer to complete surveys before and after their journeys to measure the program impact on their mental health.

MEASURES: Warrior Expeditions uses two standardized measures of psychopathy:

1. The PCL-5 is a 20-item self-report measure that assesses Post Traumatic Stress according to the DSM-5 with clinical relevance scores recommended by the Department of Veterans Affairs.
2. The SA-45 is a 45-item self-report measure that assesses the 9 Symptom Domain Scales of General Psychiatric Symptomology and scores are compared to norms of an outpatient clinical population.

OUTCOMES: The graphic below represent the positive mental health changes reported by Warrior Expeditions veterans at the completion of their journeys. PTSD, anxiety, and depression are three of the most commonly reported symptoms experienced by combat veterans. 2022 Warrior Hike Appalachian Trail Veteran

"I can't believe how much different this trail has been for me from what I expected. Don't get me wrong, the sights have been spectacular! But what I found that I didn't expect, was a real connection with people that has felt so life changing. Over the past few years with everything going on in the world, I kind of lost sight that there were and are good people out there. It took this trail to learn to maybe start dropping those walls. I was good at building walls which made it hard to let people in."

Travis Fishburn

2022 Warrior Hike Continental Divide Trail Veteran

"The silence and solitude offer an opportunity to slow down and unplug. The whole world slows down on the trail. It gives you time to dive into your thoughts, feelings, and emotions with no distractions. The wilderness revitalizes you. It heals wounds, refreshes your spirit, and cleanses your soul. It brings a blanket of calmness over you; it restores you from the inside out. The wilderness pulled anything negative I was holding onto right out of me. I felt so at peace on the trail. The real world is wild and crazy."

"This journey turned out to be much more than reaffirming what I've already known about myself. It taught me lessons and helped me move forward from painful issues, professional and personal, so I can live my life without regrets or despair. By the way I feel so good! Every day is a high. I suppose going from 189 pounds to 143 pounds is a byproduct of how awesome I feel mentally, emotionally, and physically."
